WEATHER KEY POINTS

01/11/22 - 01/17/22

Tuesday - Monday

- Periods of gusty offshore winds are expected across southern California through Wednesday, with gusts of 30-50 mph possible in prone locations of Los Angeles and Ventura Counties, as well as the Central Coast and nearby hills.
  - Minor damage and travel impacts are possible due to these gusty winds
  - Winds will become more localized on Wednesday, but strong gusts are still possible in some prone locations
- Areas of dense fog are possible through the week, which could impact travel across the state
- Most locations will remain dry throughout the week. A few periods of brief, light precipitation are possible across the state, with light snow possible over the higher mountains, especially late in the week. However, no significant precipitation impacts are expected.
